Types of Student Loans

When it comes to funding your education, there are primarily two types of student loans you can consider:

government

loans

and

private

loans.

1. Government Loans

Government loans are often the most preferred because they usually come with lower interest rates

more

flexible

repayment

terms.

In

Bangladesh,

the

government

provides

loans

through

various

schemes

aimed

at

making

higher

education

accessible

to

all.

These

loans

are

usually

need-based,

meaning

they

are

offered

students

from

lower-income

families

who

demonstrate

financial

need.

2. Private Loans

Private loans are offered by banks and other financial institutions. These loans can sometimes have

interest

rates

compared

loans,

but

might

be

easier

obtain

if

you

have

a

good

credit

history

guarantor.

Private

option

if

you

do
not
qualify
for
government
loan
or
if
you
additional
funds
beyond
what
government
loan
provides.
